NOTE: The result was subsequently amended to Reading 16 Isle of Wight 17 on appeal after Reading were backed by league bosses over a dispute during the match. Team managers, Gene Carter and Mat Stevens, questioned the legality of a rider switch by the Wizards, when they pulled Ben Isley out of the last heat and replaced him with 15-year-old Chad Wirtzfeld, their top scoring rider on the night. With the Racers 4 points behind and needing a maximum heat win to finish with a draw, the co-managers claimed if the rider wasn't injured then he couldn't be replaced. Carter had a lengthy debate with referee Ronnie Allan who insisted there was nothing in the rules to stop them making the change. Wirtzfeld went on to win the heat ahead of the Racers' Sam Norris and Adam Sheppard, with his team-mate Jamie Sealey at the back. However when Midland and Southern League co-ordinator, Laurence Rogers, was consulted the next day, he confirmed that if Ilsley was fit to continue then he couldn't be replaced, and therefore deducted the points that Wirtzfeld scored in that race. The official score was amended to Reading 16 IOW 17 as the remaining three riders in the race were not moved up a place. Bizarrely, this meant Reading were denied the draw by a rider who technically wasn't in the race and scored no points.

NOTE: The result was subsequently amended to Reading 14 Exeter 18. This was due to the Falcons using James Chattin in place of the programmed Max Pankhurst in heat one and, similarly, for using Adam Sheppard in place of the programmed Chattin in heat three. The 1-point recorded by Chattin in heat one, together with the 3 points scored by Sheppard in heat three, were therefore removed from the Exeter total.
